Each weekday morning students woke up early to make it to school on time. While there, they listened to long lectures, took tests, hung out with friends, and went to meetings and practices. Along the way, they made new friends and memories to last a lifetime. The freshmen tried to survive their first few days; the sophomores were glad to no longer be freshmen. The juniors gained a little freedom by getting their license, and the seniors basked in the glow of graduation.

Most of the freshmen felt like they were walking into the wild jungles of SURVIVOR. New freshmen Jodi West was nervous about entering high school. "I didn't think I would like it at first because I didn't know anyone here. After a few weeks, I found out that it's a blast!" she said.

With an EXTREME attitude, MAKEOVER, the sophomores worked hard to prove that they were worthy to move ahead of the freshmen. "Sophomore year has been awesome. We were no longer the low man on the totem pole," said Amber Morgan.

The juniors felt like they were living the Simple Life.. They had nothing to worry about except passing geometry and history. "All work and no play is my motto. . . not." said Ben Wisman. "This year was all about hanging out with friends while playing cards and Playstation."

The seniors thought they had it MADE, but then they realized that the senior year was not going to be a picnic. Many students had piles of math homework or a paper to write each night. "Senior year was magnificent. I would never trade the all-nighters that I had to pull to finish my English papers or the long hours I spent on scholarship essays." said Genna Troup. "As the year went by, I began to notice how important it was to take in every moment because time flies by."

Whether students were SURVIVORS, got an EXTREME MAKEOVER, lived the Simple Life, or had it MADE. They were all part of one body, and this was their reality.

Imagine being one out of six hundred Average Joes trying to survive in a DOG EAT DOG world
where your social life and education collide every day. If only you could live the Simple

life and go to class when you

wanted, choose when you did

your homework, and have break

time, but in the real world,

in THE REAL WORLD, reality comes in the form of new days in an Amazing Race.

and sometimes it is a struggle to survive. Your big project is due tomorrow. You have fifty algebra problems to complete. You have two hours

of practice after school, and the big game is Friday night.

Before the lunch rush begins, the cafeteria ladies take time to eat their lunch in peace. They needed this quiet time before serving the ravenous student body.

Teachers are frequently spotted socializing with each other in order to escape the chaos of the classroom. Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Dickson took time out of their day to trade war stories.

Caught off guard, Coach Weeks awakens to the bright flash of the camera. Perhaps in the future, he will be more aware of photographers on the prowl.

Listening to all the political jargon in the hall has finally sent Mrs. Weaver and Mrs. Niedergeses over the edge. Each day seemed like a never-ending episode of Hardball.

Looking for research paper information, Mrs. Taylor surfs the internet. Many seniors called on her for assistance in completing their papers.

Mr. Perry manages to dodge the camera once again. Comedian or cameraphobic?

Wrestling over next year's schedule, Mrs. Snyder and Mr. Burns wrestle through the paperwork. They began working in January and weren't finished until the summer.

Newcomer Kiley Weathers learns a lesson from the master Nondas Smith. The lecture worked, because the school was spic and span all year.

Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Powell, Mr. Augustin, and Mrs. Marks keep it real in the science hall. They spent their break time discussing some off-the-wall topics.

OoPs!

Embarrassing moments that will make you blush!

what a drip

I was in the bathroom at my old elementary school, and I told my friend that she sounded like a leaky faucet. Well, it turned out that my friend had already left, and it was my teacher!

depends

In seventh grade during cheerleading practice, one of my fellow squad members was constantly messing up the moves to our new routine. Later, when she tripped, everyone started laughing. Unfortunately, I was laughing so hard that I didn't realize I needed to go to the bathroom. I wet my pants in front of everyone!

old faithful

One day at lunch in eighth grade, just as I took a big gulp of water someone made me laugh. I couldn't control myself. Water spewed out of my mouth and all over my friends sitting across the table!

when life gives you lemons

Someone poured lemonade all over my shirt at lunch. The bad part was that I was wearing a white tee-shirt. I gave everyone a free show before I could get to the bathroom!

mostly moonie

I was at church camp one summer when I tried to jump up and sit on a brick wall. My exercise pants got caught on the bricks during my attempt to execute the turn. I mooned about one hundred or so teenagers walking along the sidewalk behind me.

tighty whities

I spilled water all over my pants one day; so I had to get some pants from Mrs. E. The only pants she had were tight white jogging pants. It wouldn't have been so bad, but that day I wore multi-colored underwear!

First date disasters that will make you laugh and cry

the slip

I went out on a blind date with this girl. I took her to the Ponderosa to eat. During the meal, she said she had to go to the restroom. She excused herself, and I waited for her for about an hour. She never came back.

show me the money

I went out on a blind date with this guy. He took me to McDonald's to eat. We ordered. Then, he asked me, "Do you have any money?" I didn't have any, so we didn't get to eat. He said he spent all his money on gas.

blah blah blah

I went out with this really conceited guy. All he could talk about was himself. I never got to say a word. When we got to the restaurant, I ordered the most expensive thing on the menu and dessert. He continued to talk throughout the meal while I just sat there without eating anything.

right on the nose

It was time for the goodnight kiss at the end of my date, and I was really nervous. I was going to be the nice girl and only kiss him on the cheek, but he was headed for the lips. I zigged. He zagged, and I kissed him right on the nose! The next day, I told my cousin what happened, and she told my entire family!.

dramamine please

I took this girl bowling and then out to eat. Everything was going well until the ride home. She got sick at her stomach and threw up in my truck.

right between the eyes

I went to McDonald's to eat with this guy. He politely opened the door for me to walk on through. Just as I was about to go through the door, I spotted a store that I wanted to go to next. Then, as I turned around the door caught me right between the eyes, and I fell right on my butt! Apparently, my faux pas didn't matter to him because now we're dating.

Hard Work Pays Off

seniors awarded for four years of work

The Senior Awards day was held on May 10. The day was filled with emotional moments and happy smiles. Awards were given for the most outstanding students in classes, clubs, and in the entire school. Scholarships were awarded to people that worked hard over the years to give back to their community, and those who worked hard in school to maintain good grades.

The senior class president, Pete Miller, gave the opening address. He said, "it was one of the hardest speeches I have ever had to write. The subject was so broad, so I focused on memories and accomplishments. I just wanted to let the class know that I was proud of them, and that I have enjoyed my four years here."

This year a lot of different people received scholarships, proving that this class is one of the hardest working senior classes to come through Loretto High school in a while.

Proudly displaying her awards, Clarissa Blackwood earned two Rotary Scholarships, as well as many others.

Rewarded for all their hard work, seniors await their names to be called for their scholarships.

Class President, Pete Miller, gives the opening address. He welcomed everyone to awards day before handing the rest of the ceremony over to Mr. Daniel.

Showing off their "Lunch Lady Awards", Blake Mashburn drinks from his Yoo-hoo, while Daniel Huntley displays his very own water bucket.

Posing with all her awards, Claire Kennedy received several scholarships, as well as the United States Army Reserve Athlete Award and was also chosen as the most outstanding student in all three foreign languages.

Wearing her knee length, pleated skirt and classic white blouse, Clarissa Blackwood shows her delight with this retro 80's design.

Fashion Rewind

yesterday's trends mingled with today's technology

If it's been said once, it's been said a thousand times, "That was in style when I was your age!" It's evident that history does repeat itself when it comes to fashion. Today, girls are returning to longer skirts, flared jeans, stone-wash jeans and pumps, while guys are bringing back button-up collar shirts, old rock-n-roll band tees and boot cut jeans. Senior Bethany Nugent said, "I'm really glad 40s trends, like the fitted blazers, are coming back."

However, when it comes to technology, today's trends are anything but from the past. New cell phone fads include slider and camera phones with designed face covers and personalized ringtones. Another emerging tech fad is the digital camera.

Other trends of the year include purses made from laminated Kool-Aid and Capri-Sun pouches, kitten-heels, off-the-shoulder tops, ugg boots, clutch bags, and Converse tennis shoes.

Sporting her retro Abercrombie jacket, Sarah Engelhardt takes a step back into the '70's.

Inspired by the '80's, Samantha Whitley shows off her brightly colored top and hot pink pointed-toe pumps.

All Work and No Play

hobbies keep students from being dull boys & girls

Hobbies are a way to escape the daily grind of homework and tests. Most students and teachers have a favorite hobby that they like to participate in on weekends and during the summer. These hobbies can be something as simple as going shopping or as dangerous as motocross.

Dustin Nelson said that "playing the guitar is his favorite thing to do outside of school." Many students have hobbies that relate to music. Max Reedy says, "Music soothes my inner beast. When I'm on stage I feel like Lenny Kravitz." Max, Mitchell Butler, and Pete Miller spend a lot of time on the weekends practicing with their bands and playing gigs.

There are other students who opt for more dangerous hobbies. Motocross seems to be the most popular pastime for male students. "Riding dirt bikes is a lot of fun, but you need a good head on your shoulders to stay alive," said Cole Self.

Whether it's a simple and safe hobby or a dirty and dangerous one, these pastimes keep students from getting bogged down by too much school work.

Ralph Passarella spends a few hours playing PS2 with his friends. This pastime gave him a much needed break from basketball practice and homework.

While participating in a motocross race, Cole Self gets big air. He has broken several bones participating in this dangerous sport.

details make the difference for dress-up days

Each year, the SGA sponsors the annual homecoming dress-up days. Every morning during homcoming week students congregate outside of the office to show off their attire for the designated day. This year students showed their school spirit on Pajama day, Senior Citizen day, 80's day, Pairs day, and Friday's traditional Black, White, and Camo day.

With so many interesting outfits, one might ask, "What makes a good homecoming outfit?" Tasha Williams says, "Accessories really add to an outfit. It all comes down to the details." Tasha borrowed Mrs. Stout's Granny Danny wig to complete her senior citizen outfit.

Lucas Hunt says "Sometimes you really have to dig around to find a good outfit." He had trouble completing his Alice Cooper costume on 80's day. He bought the mask at Spencer's, but searched high and low to find just the right accessories to complement the outfit.

Outfits and accessories were hard to find for 80's day, and most students weren't on target with their choices. When asked how well students replicated 80's fashion, Mrs. Weaver said, "Most of the outfits didn't look like anything I wore back then, and I don't know why everyone was wearing a ponytail on the side!"

Many students participated by dressing up, but some of them had difficulties pulling their ensembles together.

McDonald's anyone? Laken Johns and Heather Cox made the perfect snack as fries and ketchup on pairs day.

Get ready for Sumomania! Sisters, Catherine Kennedy and Claire Kennedy, wrestled their way through the halls on pairs day by dressing up as sumo wrestlers.

Isn't it past your bedtime? Derrick Newton, Leah Stone and Tasha Williams were cute and cuddly in their PJ's on Pajama Day.

HE SAID SHE
Where did you get the idea for your costume?
HE	Alice Cooper
	"I saw it at Spencer's and thought it was cool; so I bought it."
SHE	Molly Beecham
	"We got the idea from Mary Beth's mom. We wore the hats so we did not have to make lids."

Is this a class of '88 reunion? Chris Beckman and Mrs. Barbie Marks show their class of '88 spirit. Chris went the extra mile on 80's day and got a mullet cut for the day.

Where are the Depends? Van Vansandt and Jessica Ballard needed a little help getting around the halls on Senior Citizen's Day, so they brought their walkers to school.

Let's Get Ready to Tumble

embarrassment sets the tone for class competition

Each year during homecoming, students participate in games that go along with the dress up days. The games are an especially thrilling time for the student body because something totally embarrassing usually happens during the relays. This year was no exception.

Monday's pajama day started out in true Jerry Springer style. Just as the relay began, a fight broke out in the stands. When the bodies cleared and the hair pulling was over, the inciters of the melee were pulled from the stands and escorted to the office.

During Tuesday's game, one person from each class took a spill, much to the crowd's delight. Fortunately most of the tumblers were protected by padding in their senior citizen costumes. Tasha Williams said of her fall, "I had a lot of pillows for padding, but I had the biggest bruise afterward."

Thursday Lucas Hunt, who misunderstood the game's rules, fell during the balloon relay. Although he broke his arm, his pride seemed to suffer the most damage. "After it happened, I wanted to bury myself and die. I never will get over the embarrassment." he said.

Even though some participants and spectators would like to forget these unfortunate occurrences, this year's competition will indeed be the topic of homecoming conversations for years to come.

In an attempt to snag another point for the senior class, Tatum Taylor races toward Mrs. Leighton. The juniors got the point for that specific item, but in the end the seniors were victorious.

Mrs. Dean watches for signs of cheating as Kaleigh O'Brien and Emmy Pigg try desperately to shave their balloon without making it explode. Sadly, the juniors were caught cheating and were disqualified.

Inching her way forward to stomp out the competition, Sheena Shelton moves in on her prey, Kirsten McMahan and Sarah Brewer. Regrettably for Sheena, Sarah came out on top, and the sophomores earned a victory.

Shawna Kennedy depends on her sponge-squeezing abilities in order to win the race on Senior Citizens' Day. The race was a close one, but the sophomores came in first.

"Faster Lucas!," screams Derek Peters as the juniors urgently work to keep Derek pinned to the bleachers. The judges had a difficult time declaring a winner because all those taped to the bleachers fell at the same time.

Hoping to attain a victory for the sophomore class, Allison Beckman concentrates on keeping her balloon cargo secure during the pairs day relay. Despite her best efforts, the senior class triumphed.

Pomps and Circumstance

students make parade a success

Each year students and faculty alike anticipate the arrival of the annual homecoming parade. The freshmen class especially looks forward to this event and their first experience in float preparation and building.

Freshmen Tommy Bottoms was eager to work on the float. He recalled, "The entire class pitched a few ideas, but it was Mr. Augustin who thought of the concept for the float." Although their sponsor came up with the idea, they were all assigned different tasks. "I had to paint and place the float on the platform," said Tommy.

Some students stay after school during the week to work on the class floats so they will be ready in time for the parade on Friday. Tommy stayed after because he said it seemed like it would be fun to build the float, and he wanted to be able to voice his opinions about what was going on.

After two weeks of hard work, the float was finally completed. Tommy said, "My driving force was competing with the upper grades and wanting to beat the seniors." Even though the freshmen put in a lot of man hours, they placed third in the competition. Tommy was disappointed with the defeat but said, "I plan on working on the float again next year. I learned a lot, and it was fun."

The freshmen pound the cubs in the class float competition. However, in the end, they folded under the pressure and weighed in at third.

The junior class float sits ready to roll along the parade route. The float rocked its way into first place.

Without any help from students, Ms. Dickson, Ms. Bosheers, and Winnie the Pooh (Mr. Waldrop) work diligently to finish the sophomore float. As usual, the sophomores came in last.

The senior float "Tree the Cubs" wants to join the parade. The seniors managed to keep the cubs treed long enough to come in second.

A Royal Tradition

the evolution of the homecoming court

For many years the football team has taken part in choosing the homecoming queen. In the beginning, they were responsible for choosing only the two nominees, but later, as the number of attendants increased, the team was given the task of choosing the queen.

Martha (Bradley) Neidert remembers that in 1950 when she was crowned queen, there were two clubs, the Adelprians and the Excelsiors. The football team chose one nominee, who didn't have to be a senior, from each club. Then, the club that raised the most money won the crown.

In the mid-fifties the Adelprians and Excelsiors went by the wayside, and the homecoming court changed. Brenda (Green) McMasters, queen in 1959, recalls that seven girls (one freshmen, one sophomore, two juniors, and three seniors) were nominated by their classmates as attendants, and the football team chose the queen from the senior attendants.

In the early seventies, the number of attendants increased from seven to nine. Then, shortly thereafter, in 1976, the number of attendants grew to eleven. Even though the number of attendants increased, the task of electing the queen remained the sole responsibility of the football team.

Tatum Taylor and Derrick Marks pose for a picture after the crowning as Kirsten McMahan looks on. Tatum was chosen by the football team as the 2004 homecoming queen.

Ms. Love Psychic (Josh Hale) predicts that she will win the pageant. Unfortunately, she didn't cast a spell on the judges.

Bambi (Pete Miller) hoes her way to victory. The judges were impressed and (s)he was chosen The Loretto High School 2004 Womanless Beauty Pageant Queen.

Feminine Wiles

crafty contestants get a little flirty

When the SGA began planning the womanless beauty pageant, they never expected the contestants to be so crafty. The lovely ladies were even sly enough to slip in a proposition or two to the judges.

This year's pageant, according to judge John Pettus, showed lots of "brown-nosing". Phyllis Daniel (Tyler Cromwell) claimed that her future plans were to marry sixth year judge, Steve McMasters, and inherit Green's Furniture Store.

In the end, all of the girl's flirting, showing off, and good looks did not matter in the eyes of the judges. After the pageant they said, "We know women, and we picked the one who best suited."

Judge Steve McMasters said, "All the girls were lovely. It was a tough job, but we had to choose a winner." In the end, it was Bambi (Pete Miller) whom the judges fancied the most. Her gardening skills and great sense of style earned her the title of queen.

DeeDee Simbeck (Brian Dean) shows off her hula dancing skills. Sadly, the judges said aloha, and DeeDee was only a runner-up.

Phyllis Daniel (Tyler Cromwell) obviously adores Britney Spears's style. She provocatively inticed the judges with her barely there clothing.

HE SAID SHE
What was your favorite part of the womanless beauty pageant?
HE	Cody Nelson
	"It was crazy watching boys dress up as girls."
SHE	Demetria Hobbs
	"The way that Pete was dressed and how the contestants pranced out as if it was a real runway."

Sisters Eliza (Eli Fisher) and Erica (Eric Frakes) pose for a quick photo as they get ready for their walk of fame and chance at stardom. They hoped lucky number seven would pay off.

Pride in Your Ride

student vehicles reflect personality

Since everyone wants to make sure that their ride is the most unique in the parking lot, accessories for vehicles have become the new craze for drivers. If you ask anyone who has the most distinctive vehicle in the parking lot, he or she will say Josh Morton's 1978 Caprice.

"I found it in Leoma at a garage owned by a friend of my dad, and I picked it because it was the biggest one I could find at the time," Josh said. He also said that he did not want some "small plastic car, like a Dodge Neon" because he wanted to be protected in case of an accident.

Some students are quite competitive about who has the best rims, shiniest wheels, or loudest system. Josh said the only things he has done to his "boat" is add a new $300 vinyl top and a system which fits nicely in his over-sized trunk.

Other students have Mardi Gras beads or leis hanging from their rearview mirrors, but Josh's car needs no trendy accessory to make it stand out. He said, "My car fits my personality. It's unique just like me."

Euro tail lights, chrome rims, and wide tires make Adam Pettus's Z71 Chevy unique. Many trucks in the parking lot had similar accessories.

Josh Morton poses with his "land barge", a 1978 Caprice. His was, without a doubt, the most unique vehicle in the parking lot.

Excited to finally get the rims he's always wanted, Kyle McDow hopes to impress his friends. Chrome rims and spinners were popular during the 04-05 school year.

What would you change about your ride?

HE

Lance Gaily

"To start my Jeep, I have to tilt the wheel up while pushing the horn and turning the switch. I hate it."

SHE

Jessica Dover

"I would get a new bumper because mine is cracked."

Fun interior accessories reflect Kristen Deagan's personality. Many students had beads and leis hanging from their rear view mirrors.

Sporting the only purple car in the student parking lot, Kala Clayton's unique taste shines through. Not many purple Saturns rolled off the line in Spring Hill.

Poised with pencils in hand, Chris Jackson and Casey Cheatwood fill out their voter registration papers. Seniors were given the chance to register to vote in their econ. and government class this year.

Manning the polls, the contemporary issues class members assist Ashley Fleeman, Ashley Stephenson, Kaleigh O'Brien, Chuck Hall, and others in voting. George Bush was victorious in the mock election.

eXercising our right

students participate in mock election

In the classrooms, the halls, and even the lunchroom, the subject on everyone's tongue from September to November was politics. This year's presidential election caused quite a stir among students and faculty alike, inspiring debates, discussions, and arguments.

Coach Simbeck's contemporary issues class researched and presented posters with the Democrat and Republican stances on all the hot issues. The posters were placed in the halls so that other students could check out the issues and get information.

In October the class held a mock election which resulted in a win for George Bush; although the legitimacy of the win was later questioned because those working the polls were campaigning for Bush (which is against the law in a real election). Undeniably, though, the mock election had an impressive turnout.

With issues like the war in Iraq, abortion, and homosexual marriage, students couldn't help but be interested in the election and in where the candidates stood on these hot-button issues. Chris Jackson summed up the most interesting aspect of the race, "[Students] got involved and voiced their opinions; it was great!"

Erin Cothren hangs a poster stating the presidential candidates' positions on various issues during the election. These posters were placed in the halls to promote political awareness.

Feuding faculty members Coach Simbeck and Mrs. Weaver take a break from their heated political debate to display their parties' pins. Unfortunately, Mrs. Weaver had to accept defeat after the November election.

Ciel Fontenot and Giselle Fontenot capture the audience's attention with their powerful interpretive movements to How Beautiful. These sisters have performed this act several times in church.

Were you nervous performing in front of the student body?
HE	Kyle Bosheers
	"No, not really. I pictured everyone in their underpants; so that helped."
SHE	Mary Wilson
	"It was a new experience performing in front of people I hardly knew, but in the end it was worth it."

Mitchell Butler plays guitar with his band Arisen from the Ashes. Even though they didn't win, they brought the audience to their feet.

Leah Reeves and Lucas Hunt warm up the audience with Sonny and Cher's smash hit "I've Got You Babe." Lucas and Leah were the emcees for the talent show.

Mustang Idol

students participate in first talent show

This year the SGA and ITS sponsored the first annual talent show to raise money for the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life. The show was a huge success with ten performers participating. Fortunately they didn't have to face the criticism of Simon Cowell.

Ciel and Giselle Fontenot took the grand prize for their interpretative movement to the song How Beautiful, and Megan Guess captured first place in the vocal solo category with her performance of the Gretchen Wilson hit When I Think About Cheatin'. Dustin Nelson took top prize in the non-vocal talent category with his keyboard performance of an assortment of songs, including one that he wrote himself. Second Hand Oxygen, featuring Pete Miller on guitar, won first in the band category.

The show was put on twice, once for the student body and then again that night for the general public. The show also featured a real treat with the lip sync performance of Sonny and Cher's hit "I Got You Babe" by the show's emcees Lucas Hunt and Leah Reeves.

The first talent show brought in over $1000 for the Relay for Life. Many students are already looking forward to next year's show.

Megan Guess sings "When I think about Cheatin,'" by Gretchen Wilson. She stunned her classmates with her talent.

Claire Kennedy, assisted by Pete Miller on guitar, wows the audience with a little Sheryl Crowe. Claire said, "Performing in the talent show was a great experience."

Even after Mrs. Borum said, "No sacks or balls allowed on school grounds," Tony Giambelluca and Tara Comer play hacky sack in the band hallway. Lucky for these two, they weren't caught.

ISS Survival Tips
5	Have tons of work, so you will not get bored.
4	Go to the bathroom often.
3	Take the trays back to the cafeteria.
2	Don't irritate Coach Snider.
1	Open a book, act like you're reading, and then go to sleep.

Genna Troup longs for the bell to ring so she can get out of ISS. When asked about the experience, she said, "It made me really look at how I act, and I have tried to be a little nicer in class."

Hiding in the boys' restroom, Justin Hollman text messages his friends while Ashley Fleeman phones home to see if someone will check her out. Ashley has also broken the dress code by wearing her shirt too short and wearing a hat.

Breaking the Rules

a day in the life of an ISSer

In-School Suspension, most commonly known as ISS, is one of the most used punishments for rule-breakers. Since I've often wondered if ISS is actually a deterrent for these unruly students, I subjected myself to a day in the life of an ISSer.

On September 24th, Mrs. Borum called the guilty students to her office, but that day was different because it was my name that was part of the roll call. She sternly exclaimed the reason for my sentence. "Miss Troup, you left on the first bell; so I've assigned you to one day of ISS." I went back to class, gathered my belongings, and headed to ISS.

Once there, I had to write down a list of my teachers so that my assignments for the day could be gathered. Unfortunately, I only had two assignments to complete during my lengthy stint.

I made sure I sat at one of the cubicle desk so I could jot down some notes about my day without being detected. I soon learned from one of my cohorts that sitting at the cubicle desk had its advantages. He informed that I could catch a few z's without detection if I held a book and tilted my head just right. Soon, it was time for a much needed bathroom break. I was so glad to be out of there that I spent extra time washing my hands.

Lunch was a bittersweet experience. I was glad to get to go to lunch before everyone else, but on the way back from the cafeteria the bell rang. Shamefully, I hung my head as my classmates whispered and laughed at me. I hoped he would pick me to take the trays back so I could talk to my friends and settle the rumors but no such luck.

Finally, it was time to leave and my horrific day finally ended. One thing I know is that I never want to go back!

The school day is almost over, and Allison Springer and Clint Wright try to sneak out on the bus bell. Fortunately, they had been caught, they would have received ISS the next day.

Tameka Gulley and Jessica West demonstrate the newest way to receive ISS. Jessica was even brave enough to keep her cell phone out on the table.

Boredomitis Lecturosis

students fall victim to classroom monotony

What exactly is boredom? Mr. Merriam Webster defines boredom as "the state of being weary and restless through lack of interest." This definition, however, neglects to mention that boredom is something more than a state of mind; it is a disease. A chronic disorder caused by longwinded lectures, monotonous short stories, and algebraic expressions. This contagion which is transmitted by yawning and observing other indifferent classmates as they slump over onto their desks, can soon become a violent epidemic if not treated.

Justin Hollman says, "I get bored when a teacher talks in a monotone voice. I cannot stand the voice not changing. When a teacher reads from a book to the entire class, nothing bores me more than that." Once boredom sets in, and a student's head goes down, an outbreak is soon to follow. Students begin to drop like flies, and any teacher's attempt to wake them is futile.

Even teachers get bored. According to Mrs. Perry, "The same stuff over and over again at faculty meetings" really bores her. And sometimes, according to Mrs. E, even the subject matter in her class is boring. "It's hard to keep kids from getting bored when you're bored yourself."

Even though a cure for boredomitis lecturosis is unlikely, students and teachers can make every attempt to stop the spread of this unfortunate disease.

Taking a break from the monotony of class, Ashley Luna writes a note to a friend. Looking as if she was taking notes kept her from being detected.

Derrick Gowen slumbers from all the reading in Mrs. Smith's English class as Casey Robbins fights to stay awake. Too much reading caused these two to drift off to dreamland.

A long biology lecture causes Kayla Roberts' collapse. She took advantage of the teacher's trip to the office.

This is boring! Now I know what people went through when.. my Bronco was going up the freeway.

-- OJ Simpson on the televised journey of the truck taking ballots to Tallahassee.

Perhaps the world's second worst crime is boredom. The first is being a bore.

-- Sir Cecil Brown

Everyone is a bore to someone. That is unimportant. The thing to avoid is being a bore to oneself.

-- Gerald Brown

Boredom comes from a boring mind.

-- Metallica

Wait, I just remembered something! You're boring and my legs work.

-- David Spade

In an attempt to look as if he is reading, Casey Wilburn covers his face. His teacher didn't realize that he was actually reading the back of his eyelids.

Kayla Carter and Mary Wilson suffer through another day of note taking in math class. The only thing that kept them from collapse was knowing the day was almost over.

Warmth in Winter

Dancing close to beat the cold

Packed in tight and surrounded by other students, Ciel Fontenot does her best to clear out a little dancing space. During her fourth winter formal, Ciel spent most of the night on the hot and crowded dance floor.

"It was cold and wet outside, but the dance floor, was miserably hot," said Ciel "We were packed in there like a bunch of sardines."

Even though most of the students boogied the night away on the dance floor, there were some students who just parked in the middle of the floor where they stood around talking and not dancing.

"I didn't and still don't understand why so many people just camped out in the middle of the dance floor. They took up the space that the rest of us needed to dance." Ciel said.

Many students and their dates chose to hang out on the edge of the dance floor, stay cool and socialize, but Ciel and her friends chose to sweat it out and have fun on the dance floor.

"It was hot and jammed packed, but I would do it all over again," said Ciel. "My friends and I had a blast!"

During one of his favorite songs, Edward Pettus shows off his moves. Unlike some students, Ed spent a lot of time on the dance floor having a good time.

Pete Miller, Ben Brawner, and Mitchell Butler take a trip down retro lane and lead Molly Gray and others in the YMCA. "Dancing to the YMCA was the best part of the night," said Erin Cothren.

Dancing the night away, Ciel Fontenot, Kari Stout, Ashley Luna, Leigh Brewer, and Brittany White stop for a photo op.

HE Said SHE
 What was your favorite part of Winter Formal?

HE

Drew Price

"My favorite part was being able to hang out with my girlfriend Bethany at our first Winter Formal."

SHE

Mary Roberts

"My favorite thing about Winter formal night was hanging out at Danielle's house afterwards. We played games and fought over the bathroom!"

Clarissa Blackwood, Amber Morgan, and company do the Electric Slide. Almost everyone at the dance participated in this popular line dance.

Ben Brawner and Jaime Degan share a final slow dance. "It was difficult dancing with someone so tall, but we had a great time." said Jaime.

All puckered up and ready for pie, Pete Miller readies himself for a treat from Mrs Weaver. She added a little something extra in Pete's pie before letting him have it.

Reeling from the aftermath, Pete Miller tries to clean the chocolate pie off of his face. Luckily, most of it ended up on his face and not his clothes.

Enjoying her victory, Josie Brown makes sure she gets the pie all over Coach Simbeck. She smeared the pie all over his bald head to make the crowd go wild.

Simbeck Gets Busted

student body busts a move to pie coach

For almost ten years Coach Simbeck has competed in the pie contest, and each year his class failed to raise the most money keeping his shiny head free from whipped cream. This year, however, everything changed. Mrs. Weaver entered the contest, and Coach Simbeck finally had a little competition to deal with.

Early in the week, he was sitting pretty, and Mrs. Weaver was getting worried that she would be the one to get clobbered.

On Wednesday, both put their campaigns in high gear, and by Thursday afternoon Coach Simbeck was feeling safe because the juniors were down by 200 links.

Things took a sharp turn on Friday morning when Mrs. Weaver decided to take some drastic measures. With Coach Simbeck's favorite song blaring in the background, she revealed how he had bragged about never being pied and how he was feeling pretty confident that this year would be no different.

At last, on Friday the student body joined together to raised enough money to see Coach Simbeck get the pie.

Keeping the pan in place to catch dripping whipped cream, Giselle Fontenot waits for help from Mrs. Barnett. Coach Weeks rubbed the pie all over her face and her hair.

Knowing that he did not have to worry about being pied, Officer Bedsworth gently rubs pie in Keianna Hughes's face. He then rubbed a little bit of the pie in her hair after she had begged him not to do it.

HE Said SHE

Why did you volunteer for the Annual Pie Contest?

HE

Coach Simbeck

"I feel like I was totally ganged up on, and I was conned into being a participant in this year's pie contest. They came to me at the last minute saying they did not have anyone else."

SHE

Mrs. Weaver

"I wanted to see Coach Simbeck pied because he kept running his mouth about how he had not been pied over the past five to six years. Luckily, I was not the only one who wanted to see him pied."

Layering on the whip cream, Mrs. Weaver gives Coach Simbeck a little extra dessert. Coach Simbeck ate the chocolate pie and whipped topping off with a spoon he stole from the cafeteria.

The Play's the Thing

Blithe Spirit

Noel Coward's Blithe Spirit tells the story of how novelist Charles Condomine invites into his placid country home an eccentric, breezy lady medium in order to learn the language of the occult. Little does Charles or his lovely second wife, Ruth, dream that the seance staged by the medium will summon back Charles' first wife, now "passed over" for seven years. The lady from beyond appears and torments Charles by reminding him of their days together. Only Charles can see or hear her. A floating vase, handed to her out of thin air, finally convinces Ruth that Charles is not losing his mind--that his first wife is indeed in the room. The first wife has a ghostly plot in mind: if she can get Charles into an automobile accident and make a ghost of him, life in the spirit world will have more appeal for her. Mistakes occur, and it is Ruth who takes the fatal car ride--only to return with the first wife to plague the bewildered bigamist.

The Play's the Thing

This Must Be The Place!

This year Mrs. Leighton and the drama class also decided to delight the student body and other viewers with a comedy written by Monk Ferris.

This Must Be The Place! takes on all the characteristics of a soap opera but with a little more comedy. Basically, it is a love story with a lot of drama and comedy thrown in the mix.

One of the main characters Bob Zachery, a world-famous artist, plans a romantic night for the girl he thinks he loves. However, the night takes a different turn when a few of Bob's friends, clients, and other unexpected guests drop in and stir things up. After a bizarre twist of events, Bob realizes that he has feelings for Gloria Desmond, one of his clients, and not April March. The story finally ends with a triple wedding.

Everyone who saw the play thought it was a success. "It was probably one of the best plays I've seen here at school," stated Genna Troup. "I laughed throughout the entire play at the little side jokes."

students whine about the faculty's victory

Class tournaments are one of the most interesting events of the spring semester. Everyone especially looks forward to seeing the faculty members in their shorts, but the most anticipated event is the final game between the faculty and the students.

For years the students have been unable to defeat the strong faculty teams. They have also spent years belly-aching about the faculty's winning strategy. "We have trouble winning because the faculty always brings in outside players." said Chris Beckman. "It wasn't fair that two of the women's faculty players were outsiders." added Jessica West.

The referees have also come under fire for their apparent "home cookin" calls. Chris Beckman says, "The refs were obviously for the teachers. I mean, Coach Weeks practically body-slammed me, and Coach Taylor called a charge on me! You can't win when the refs don't give you the calls."

No matter what the outcome or how bad the officiating, class tournaments are always entertaining. Jessica West said, "Even if we didn't win I had a lot of fun playing in the tournament."

Chris Beckman demands attention from the referees after a bad call. Unfortunately for the senior boys, the refs did not change their minds about the call.

Proud coaches Paige Hannah and Laura Birdyshaw pose with the senior girl's team: Tatyum Taylor, Mary Beth Roberts, Jessica Purser, Jessica West, Brandy Novem, Carla Kollefrath, Clarissa Blackwood, and Ashley Fleeman. This team has played the faculty for the past three years, more than any other team that has ever competed in the final game.

HE SAID SHE

How do you feel about the way some people dance?

HE

Kyle McDow

"It's pretty disgusting, but my friends and I got a lot of laughs just standing around watching."

SHE

Erin Cothren

"Sometimes it's funny. However, a lot of times people take it too far, and it's just nasty."

Promenading through Paris, Eli Fisher and Leah Reeves make their entrance.

In a flashback from the eighties, Pete Miller does the robot while Claire Kennedy and Catherine Kennedy get jiggy with it.

Gasping in horror, Casey Cheatwood, Ciel Fontenot, Kari Stout, and Erin Cothren can't believe some of the dance moves their seeing.

Cutting Footloose, Ralph Passarella and Ciel Fontenot show their classmates how it's done.

In an attempt to see eye to eye with Will Methvin, Ashley Luna gets creative.

A Night in Paris

sightseeing on the moulin rouge

Did you stand outside the dance floor and gasp in disgust, or did you join in the shameless, risqué display? Since the brazen dancing looked like something found on the Moulin Rouge, A Night in Paris was an appropriate theme for the 2005 prom.

Most teachers and students were horrified by the disgusting gyrations on the dance floor. Lucas Hunt said, "There was a lot of, well, bumping and grinding." Mrs Weaver wondered if these people would dance like that in front of their parents, and Mrs. Smith was so appalled that she wouldn't comment on the vulgarity that she witnessed.

All this shameless activity leads one to ask whether it's the music or just teenage behavior in general that causes such a ghastly display. One person, who wanted to remain nameless, said, "I believe that it is rap music. As long as a slow song or country song was on, the dancing was okay, but as soon as a rap song came on people started bumping and grinding. It was horrible."

No matter what you think, it is apparent that dancing is not dancing anymore. Nowadays, any shameless and disgusting gyration can be called dancing. Hopefully, this hideous trend is on the way out.

In the Blink of an Eye

seniors realize that four years go by quickly

As incoming freshmen in the fall of 2001, the graduating class of 2005 never thought graduation day would come. However, it came quickly, and on graduation night three seniors gave speeches reminding students of their lives at LHS.

Class President, Pete Miller, gave the welcoming address. In his speech he compared the graduating class to a dysfunctional family. "We were all different, but when someone needed our help we were the first ones to lend a hand," he said.

Clarissa Blackwood reminded the seniors of all of the games and television shows they used to play and watch when they were younger. She also admitted that she still gets up early to watch Saved by the Bell. Her speech made the seniors look back on how things were and how they were soon going to change.

The farewell speech, given by Claire Kennedy, compared our laid back and friendly community to 'tee shirts and blue jeans.' She asked the audience to realize how good it is to live in our small town. She told her classmates that when she sees them ten years from now she hopes they'll still have their laid back style and be wearing their tee-shirts and blue jeans.

As the new graduates accepted their diplomas memories flooded their minds. Their thoughts of the last four years will last a lifetime.

Chris Bowser, Clarissa Blackwood, and Laura Birdyshaw stand while their classmates march in the stadium.

FEC Attack on Internet-Based Political Advocacy?

By Associated Press
Thu Mar 3rd, 2005 at 06:00:38 PST

obscure draws our attention to what could be a very worrisome development - an apparent attempt to regulate internet political advocacy in such a way that would kill it, from an interview with FEC Commissioner Bradley Smith (who seems to be a good guy on this issue):

Bradley Smith says that the free-wheeling days of political blogging and online punditry are over. In just a few months, he warns, bloggers and news organizations could risk the wrath of the federal government if they improperly link to a campaign's web site. Life In the Fast Lane

Bowling:

In its inaugural season, the Mustang bowling team had their share of ups and downs. With little experience and lots of heart, the team worked hard to perfect their skills throughout the season, and with each match the team improved. By the end of the season each player's wisdom of the game had grown, and the team had come together as a collective unit. Next year's bowling team, under the guidance of Mr. Daniel, should see improvements and earn a few wins.

Three Yards and a Cloud of Dust

Football: _ _ _

The 2004 Mustang football team started off their season with three wins, but in the fourth week of the season the victories came to a screeching halt as they lost a heartbreaker to county rival LCHS. The next week the team shook off the defeat and readied themselves for a region rumble with Waverly but suffered a second defeat at the hands of the Tigers. The Mustangs held off the Giles County Bobcats in their next game, but lost a region game to Lewis County the next week. A week's vacation was just what the team needed before homecoming. Although they were defeated, the Mustangs played what some considered their best game on homecoming night. For weeks people had said that the Cheatham Cubs could handily defeat the team, but the Mustangs obviously weren't listening. They stunned both the opponents and spectators with their grit and determination during the hard fought battle. A tough Fairview team came into town on senior night and stung the Mustangs by a score of 28 to 55, but the team was back on track the next week as they travelled to Richland and trampled the Raiders. With a region record of two wins and four losses, the Mustangs were destined to face a stronger herd at Huntington where they lost in the first round of region play.

For the Love of the game

Girl's Basketball:

The Lady Mustangs had a very successful season. Their determination, hard work, and ability to work as a team proved they truly play for the love of the game. During the regular season, they went 23-6. They suffered an early defeat at the hands of Lawrence County but returned the favor with a 56-43 victory on the Wildcat's home court. Over the Christmas break, they played a series of back to back games in Northern Alabama where they placed first. They earned the title of district season champs and were district tournament champions, but their season ended in regional tournament action when they lost the semi-final game to Harpeth.

Boy's Basketball:

Although the 2004-2005 season started out with nine losses, the Mustangs hit a mid-season winning streak and won five games. They seemed to have everything on track as they reached the high point of their season, defeating the Lawrence County Wildcats for the first time in several years. Unfortunately, this winning streak was short lived. Although the Mustangs struggled, they gave each team they played a run for their money, losing five games by three points or less. The team lost only two seniors and should be poised for more victories next season.

Shout It Out

Cheerleading:

Most people have no idea that the cheerleading season is the longest of all the sports. These girls begin practicing at the beginning of June in order to be ready for football, and their season doesn't end until after basketball tournaments in February or March. "A lot of people think cheerleading is easy, but that's just not true. We have to practice and/or go to games for nine months." said Kari Stout.

Though they don't compete, the girls work hard to do stunts and cheers that will get the crowd involved which is very difficult. "I admit it. When I see other squads who have cheering fans, it makes me a little mad. I just don't know why our fans don't get into it." Kari said.

They may not win any big awards, but these girls keep the faith for nine months of the year. Face it; they deserve a little respect.

Imagine being one out of six hundred Average Joes trying to survive in a DOG EAT DOG world where your social life and education collide everyday. If only you could live The Simple Life and go to class when you wanted, choose when you did your homework, and have break all day. But then you realize that in THE REAL WORLD, Reality

comes into play. Each new day

is an Amazing Race and sometimes it is a struggle to a survivor. Your big project is due tomorrow. You have fifty algebra problems

complete. You have two hours

of practice after school, and the

big game is Friday night.

Imagine being one out of six
hundred Average Joes trying to

where your social life and

education collide everyday. If

only you could live The Simple

Life and go to class when you

wanted, choose when you did

your homework, and have break

all day. But then you realize that in ~~THE REAL WORLD~~, reality

comes into play. Each new day

is an Amazing Race, and sometimes it is a struggle to be

a SURVIVOR. Your big project

is due tomorrow. You have fifty algebra problems to complete. You have two hours

of practice after school, and the

big game is Friday night.

Answers to multiple choice questions

1. The correct answer is C. The question asks for the value of the expression when x = 2. Substituting x = 2 into the expression yields 10.

2. The correct answer is B. The question asks for the slope of the line passing through the points (1, 2) and (3, 4). The slope is calculated as (4 - 2) / (3 - 1) = 2 / 2 = 1.

3. The correct answer is A. The question asks for the area of a rectangle with a length of 5 units and a width of 3 units. The area is calculated as length times width, which is 5 * 3 = 15.

4. The correct answer is D. The question asks for the value of the expression when x = 1. Substituting x = 1 into the expression yields 5.

5. The correct answer is C. The question asks for the slope of the line passing through the points (2, 1) and (4, 3). The slope is calculated as (3 - 1) / (4 - 2) = 2 / 2 = 1.

6. The correct answer is B. The question asks for the area of a rectangle with a length of 4 units and a width of 2 units. The area is calculated as length times width, which is 4 * 2 = 8.

7. The correct answer is A. The question asks for the value of the expression when x = 3. Substituting x = 3 into the expression yields 12.

8. The correct answer is D. The question asks for the slope of the line passing through the points (3, 2) and (5, 4). The slope is calculated as (4 - 2) / (5 - 3) = 2 / 2 = 1.

9. The correct answer is C. The question asks for the area of a rectangle with a length of 6 units and a width of 4 units. The area is calculated as length times width, which is 6 * 4 = 24.
